

Aiki Buki In Yo Ryu Kan Geiko 2017

During this very beautiful day of the 28th of January, breaking with a very cold January, there was no problem driving to Ganshoren for the Aiki Buki In Yo Ryu's Kan Geiko day.

This 2017 edition gathered 58 participants and as usual was held with the Kagami Biraki spirit symbolising "mirror opening" in order to have a review of the past year.

Soke Chalmagne speech was based on "brain, neurosciences and Mokushô meditation in the martial arts". This speech explained the utility but also the real benefits of this very meditation for all the budo participants.

As usual, the classes went well and were held in a friendly atmosphere.

Budokas could do Aikido, Karatedo, Iaido, Judo, Self-defense and Jujitsu. This year innovation was a two-teachers class directed by Renshi Nathalie Morsa and Shihandai Gilbert George.

Techniques were operated from an identical attack by the two disciplines (Karatedo and Aikido). This way of practice, in harmony with the DNBK martial arts exchange spirit, was appreciated by all the participants.

The concept might be explored in order to include it in future Shibu Taikai.

Soke Pierre Chalmagne thanked his close collaborators who had accomplished a huge background work in order to make this 2017 Kan Geiko a big success.

He thanked as well all the teachers who shared their knowledges during the classes.
